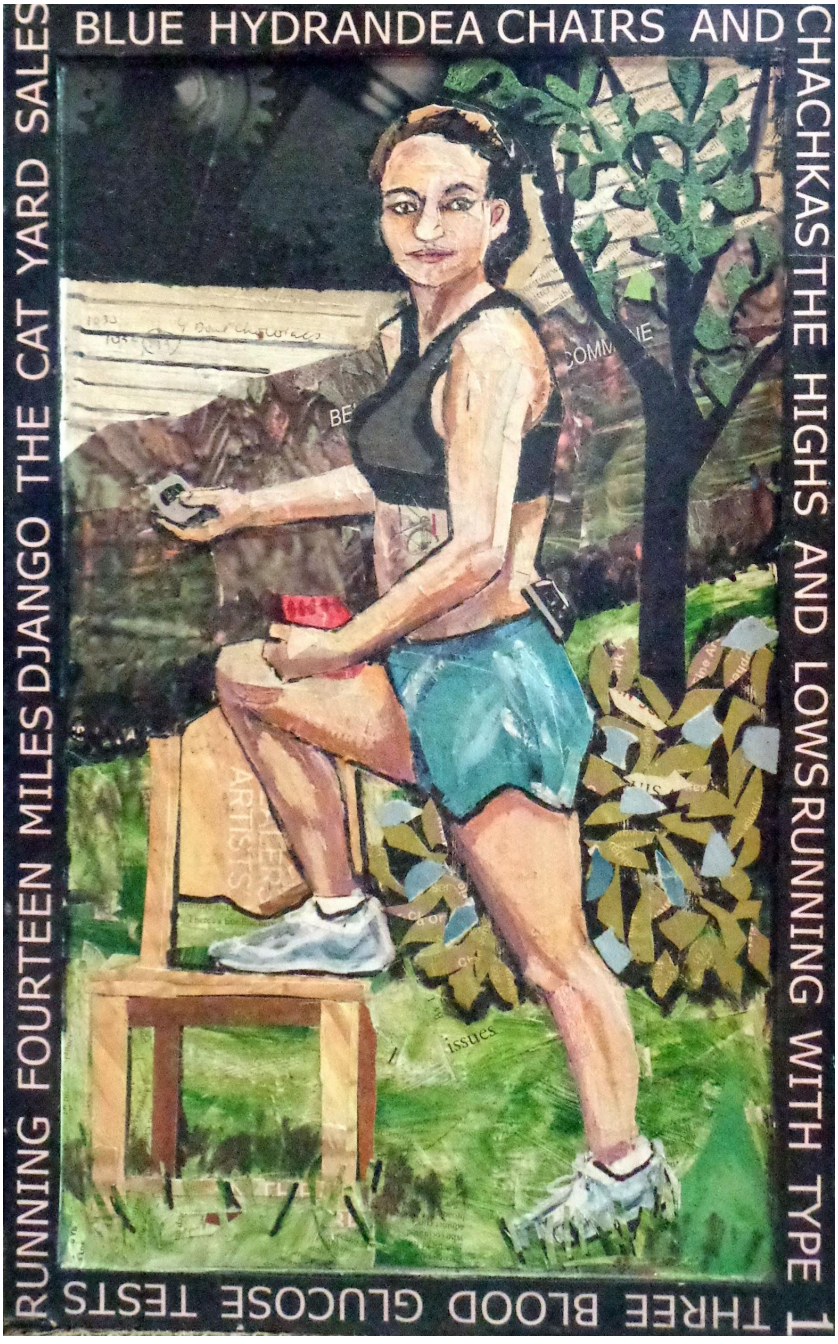
Finding a Way

by Kathryn DeMarco

Audio Description Script
by Jan Tu (June, 2022)

ARTS ACCESS



Finding a Way is an 18 inch high by 11 inch wide collage on icon board by Kathryn DeMarco. This work is a full length portrait of a woman in a running outfit. The image is made up of small patches of color that sometimes blend with each other and sometimes form rough textures.

A young, light-skinned woman with black hair wears a black sports bra and aqua running shorts. Her calm face looks out but her body faces to the left with her right foot stepping onto the seat of a light brown chair. In her right hand she holds a small electronic device. A second device is clipped to the back of her waistband. She holds a red card in her left hand. She is outside. The grass is green and the olive green bush behind her on the right is in bloom with pale blue flowers. Behind the bush is a black tree with deep green leaves.

Running diagonally up from left to right in the background is a hedge made of muted and blurry reds and greens. Behind this hedge is the corner of a building with narrow white siding and just the bottom corner of a large black window.

Around the outside of the icon border starting at the bottom of the left edge are the words, “RUNNING FOURTEEN MILES DJANGO THE CAT YARD SALES BLUE HYDRANDEA* CHAIRS AND CHACHKAS THE HIGHS AND LOWS RUNNING WITH TYPE 1 THREE BLOOD GLUCOSE TESTS”.

This description was brought to you by Jan Tu, an audio describer with Arts Access, a North Carolina nonprofit that works to make the arts accessible to children and adults with disabilities.

*sic